Resource Person: Dr. Rayaz Hassan, Associate Professor, MUJ

Activities: Day-1

The medium of film and video is fundamentally linear. Certainly, there are stories that are told in non-linear ways, but every video starts at a point in time and moves forward.

To fully understand video editing, Dr. Hassan described the idea of choosing distinct points in time is extremely important. He discussed about three-point editing, which is a technique of editing, but also reflects how video editing works.

Day-2

Put another way, the process of video editing is essentially taking something long and making it shorter. But In order to make that happen, the editor must identify the point in time to start a selection. Dr Hassan explained the following six stages of editing-

Logging. The dailies or rushes are sorted and labelled in 'bins'.
