5. Brief Description of the event:

School of architecture and design organized expert talk titled “Role of culture in built morphology of traditional urbanism” to final year students and faculty member of architecture department. Dr. Anjali Krishan delivered a riveting and capturing lecture, during her discourse, she expounded upon the significance of culture within a constructed milieu and elucidated how, as time advances and evolves, the connotation and symbolism of culture transforms. Furthermore, she delved into the notion of intergenerational transmission, emphasizing how the preceding generation dutifully "hands over the torch" of our traditions and culture to the succeeding generation, fostering the hope that they will cultivate a fresh comprehension without exhibiting disrespect or disregard.
