Mr Tapan Desai

Co-Founder - Eniak Edutech Private Ltd - Nov 2018 onwards. He has been working as Presales Strategy Director - Product Solutions at Lifesight from Nov 2018. He was Associate Account Director at Taproot Dentsu, Mumbai from Aug 2016-Oct2018. He has handled multiple marketing and edutech portfolios during his career. He has also worked as software engineer, creative strategist, digital marketing strategist.

The session titled “ Advertising 10 years back and now” and he talked about how marketing and advertising has undergone a massive change in the last 10 years and continues to transform itself over time. With more data driven decisions being taken, do we lose sight of what makes us all human, our intuition and emotions ? What can we learn from what was the golden era of advertising , why do we remember iconic ads up until now? What are the positives of today's advertising? How will advertising change over time? Or will advertising transform into product marketing? He deliberated upon following pointers as Art of Persuasion - State of Advertising 10 years back .The era of eclectic folk with lateral thinking creating iconic brands through iconic ads. What made them different? 2. Find your Target and attack - Marketing and Advertising of Today. The era of targeted personas with contextual messaging. Do we like to be shown things we might not be looking for? 3. Hyper Personalization - 10 Years Hence Will advertising exist like we know it today? Will the advertising become too intrusive or will it products and messaging so subliminal that you don't even realise it? It was high energy session with really insightful marketing trends.

Ms Deepti Prajapati

7+ Years of Work Experience as Human Resources Professional Started career as Recruiter handled Campus Hiring; Worked with Chief Customer Officer as Customer Communication Associate; Moved on to Sales Business Operations role and managed Sales Target tracking and reporting for Americas Sales Team. From last four and half years, working at ZS, Pune. Experience on HR Analytics, created employee reports and drawn analysis on Headcount, Attrition, Workforce pulse, Recruiting Pipeline data. Also designed, helped implementing a Workforce Management Tool.

Summary :

She started the session titled “HR Analytics” with busting the myth that HR is all about recruiting and established a strong vote of confidence that HR is strategic partner with insightful session on HR Analytics. HR analytics is basically a game changer with HR related data being processed to arrive at strategic decisions in the organizations. It was further explained that types of analytics could be applied as descriptive which helps one analyze the description of how things/ trends at workplace are. Another point of discussion was predictive analytics which intend to forecast the future performance and drive results. An insight was shared into prescriptive analytics too that suggests the prescribed course of action intended. It was an engaging session with questions being popped up time to time for audience to reflect upon learning throughout the session. With multiple examples as google self driven car powered with analytics driving through the session, it did enrich our understanding of HR analytics with much ease and clarity.

Ms Sayani Mukherjee :

Currently working as Assistant Manager-Decision Sciences at HSBC (HDPI). She has a PGD in Business Analytics from SCMHRD, Symbiosis International University. I have over 8 years of work experience across IT and Banking industries. Prior to HSBC, she has worked as Senior Software Engineer/Analyst in Tech Mahindra Ltd. she is currently leading a 5 member team across different cities across the world to drive a global optimization project targeted to cater to transaction monitoring systems in Financial Crime Risk domain.

She deliberated on the topic “Stakeholder Perspectives : where do you sit and what do you see”. Having worked on both sides of the ITES industry, I have had the opportunity to be both the service provider as well as the Client. The ITES industry has two sides to it. The first is the company who has a product which they want to maintain, enhance and generate reports on. The second is the company which provides these services. The service provider delivers service against billable hours.

This service is then consumed by the product Company who in turn caters to the business needs of the organisation in the form of strategic and/or analytical insights or reports revenue. To the service provider the external stakeholder or Client is the product Company. For the product Company, the management may be the customer and the service provider is the vendor. Meeting business objectives as well as working with the service provider to ensure ROI are the objectives to be achieved at this end.

So the question arises: How different or similar are the two ends? How does the same project look like from the different ends of the spectrum?

Mr Swapnil Kothari

Mr Swapnil has been an SME in the Retail Industry for over 15 years providing valuable contributions in domains of Retail Operations, Sales, Projects, HCM and Learning and Development. Having worked in over 12 cities in the country (NSEW), he has an excellent understanding of the various geographies, demographics, cultures and consumer psyche. He has worked in various sectors of retail including Electronics (A/V), Insurance, Telecom, Fashion and Jewellery. Having exposure to both Lead and Lag Indicator divisions, he carries with him loads of understanding and knowledge on OD and Talent Management. He has also acquired expertise in Business L&D Strategy and Capability building. Having grown from the grass root level, Swapnil has lived the journey at every role and position and therefore understands the subjectivity and the psychological outcomes of business actions. He is also currently mentoring MBA students on career foresights and future of retail.

Summary :

Coming from position of head of learning & development, the session titled “Developing capabilities of future leaders” justified the role of learning managers in the organizations. It was a unique session with multiple pedagogical tools used to engage audience. It was a storytelling to drive home a point what are competencies and how to nurture competencies. It was further explored through examples, ice breaking sessions that revolved around developing capabilities of future managers. It took the journey of questioning randomly and ensuring participation of the students throughout the session. The session deliberated upon self reflection journey of capabilities and competencies of the students. Thereafter, they were apprised about technical aspects of competencies as resilient, wellness, nurturing, change management and their need in the current scenarios to successfully manage themselves. An analogy was drawn with lion and self-management concepts. The VUCA world concept was briskly introduced to the audience and so was the concept of gig economy as latest burning issues in training and development domain.

Summary :

The session titled “Insights into Fintech” was highest energy session with keen interest and participation from students. In spite of being technical subject, it was made comprehensibly easy by expert speaker. The speaker engaged students by a quick pop quiz where students participated and won prizes. He navigated through authorization and authentications as daily processes of OTPs and its use as security codes in mobile based financial transactions. The adoption rates of fintech grew exponentially and various financial fastest as crowdfunding, loan, forex, risk management and technology were crisply explained through. Further, it brought appreciation that Fintech is much more than financial transactions as commonly being understood currently. It expanded to add that Fintech is way much more strategic in nature. A virtual visit to HDFC bank and its banking solutions and insightful tracking of consumer data by even third parties was apprised in real time basis. Another key takeaways was Fintech-Maslow’s need hierarchy translation and finally concluded with highly regulated and policy interventions needed in the domain.

Ms. Akansha Singh

She is Founder and CEO from Bihar and founded Swayambhu Innovative Solutions Pvt Ltd with a desire to work in waste management and clean energy by helping the bottom of pyramid through construction of Biogas plants to supply low cost cooking fuel , electricity and by-products such as bio manure and bio pesticide in rural areas. She completed her graduation in Bachelors of Business administration from Banasthali University, Rajasthan and Masters in Social Entrepreneurship from Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai.

Topic summary

The session titled on “Social Entrepreneurship” started with real life time experience of a social entrepreneurial journey of the expert. Coming from the background of prestigious TISS and masters degree in social entrepreneurship, the speaker was apt to bring to the fore the grand societal challenges in social entrepreneurship. It was insightful session touching upon the identifying of grassroot problem that happened with a village stay programme at TISS. With real life problems of no toilets, no electricity, no LPG supplies, no water availability it was an eye opener session to the problems of remote areas. Further, it deliberated on the business model and various registration options available. Students were encouraged to apply to sec 8 or as an NGO mode to register their start ups. It also touched upon ‘ujjwala’ yojana of the government to provide clean fuel and challenges inherent in the gas supply chain. The technical aspects of registration requirements, types of set ups, pitching for financial resources were also discussed. The session discussed the various employment avenue and initiatives started up for self reliant villages and self help women groups. The entire process of problem identification to pitching and following prototype was easily explained in a commoner language. The state government schemes, CSR initiatives of companies were also discussed in the session. It was a very hands on commoner man approach to social entrepreneurship.

1. Everything is good except interruption occurs during the lectures of some students' mic kept on which is totally disturbing. I would like to suggest you that make all students mute while lecture and if someone wants to ask something he/she will raise his/her hand and can ask. Please think about it. Thank you.
2. The expert session was very good and thanks to teachers who provide us with such knowledge
3. More expert lectures. It will develop us for the future scenario
